Even the most erudite researcher is aware that the role associated with the caricature image of the traditional academic research librarian has become obsolete.

The question is, What has replaced it . . .

The world of information has undergone radical changes that have affected how researchers, faculty, and librarians access and use information. Staying on top of these changes is challenging, and Librarians are continually inventing creative new ways to help users create, discover, use, compile, and disseminate information.

How can you best exploit your liaison librarian’s expertise to benefit your students’ learning and success in your classes, as well as your own scholarly research? Karen Liston, an experienced reference, access, and Wayne State liaison librarian, can give you an insider’s tips on how to leverage what you already know about information with recent and upcoming changes. Come take part in this lively exchange of ideas about faculty-librarian collaborations.

WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 15

12:30 PM - 1:30PM

2339 FACULTY/ADMINISTRATION BUILDING

FREE AND OPEN TO THE PUBLIC

Karen Liston is an experienced access and research librarian, who has specialized in interlibrary loan, document delivery, and cooperative reference services between libraries. Currently a public services librarian in Wayne State’s Library System, she is also the Library’s liaison for Near Eastern, Asian, and German & Slavic Studies, English Language Learning, and Interlibrary Loan.